For Your Spirit

A Word from Your Pastor...

Dear Heroes of UMCTO,

We are journeying through “What Makes A Hero?” during Lent this year. We have been thinking about all those fictional pop culture heroes from the comic books and movies, as well as those real-life heroes. We have been thinking about who we would imitate if we were called upon to be a hero, someone who has taught us important life lessons. While there are many names and figures we can think of, the name Chesley Sullenberger comes to my mind. He is certainly a hero to 155 people and their families for a very good reason. I have come to appreciate him for not only his quick thinking but also how he conducted himself after that miracle landing. As you know he was the pilot for US Airways on January 15, 2009 in New York, when the plane he was flying was struck by a large flock of Canada geese. Both of the plane’s engines were damaged, and Sullenberger made a fast decision to perform an emergency water landing in the Hudson River. He famously announced, “Brace for impact,” as the plane came down on the water. The landing was a success, and all 155 passengers and crew aboard the plane survived. And Captain Sullenberger was the very last person to leave the plane. He also conducted himself with patience and humility during the FAA investigation. His quick thinking and superior piloting skills meant life rather than death for everyone that day on what is now called the “Miracle on the Hudson.” Later in his book, “Highest Duty: My Search of What Really Matters”, he writes: “We all have heard about ordinary people who find themselves in extraordinary situations. They act courageously or responsibly, and their efforts are described as if they opted to act that way on the spur of the moment....I believe many people in those situations actually have made decisions years before. Somewhere along the line, they came to define the sort of person they wanted to be, and then they conducted their lives accordingly...”

I don’t know if you ever thought of it this way or not, but we are all heroes for the Kingdom of God. We all decided that’s who we wanted to be when Christ came into our life. And in our walk with him, we conduct our lives accordingly. During Lent, we focus on our greatest hero, Jesus, who redefined what a hero is. As you and I go through the last couple of weeks remaining in Lent, may we continue to journey with our Hero, Jesus, and ask Him for wisdom, strength, vision, courage, patience, love, peace and joy. For this we have been called, to act faithfully, courageously and sacrificially.

Your Friend,
John

TLC FOR OUR SANCTUARY - INSIDE AND OUT

INSIDE: KNITTERS & CRAFTERS USE THEIR TALENTS

Thank you to the ladies in the Wednesday Knitters, Crafters, and Talkers Group! When the baptismal font lost it's cover, they stepped up to create the new, LOVELY cloth cover that matches the colors in the sanctuary.

Next time you're on the west side of the narthex where the baptismal is stored, do notice the new cover.

Here, Donna Kirby checks the edges. She used her serger machine to professionally finish all the sides.

OUTSIDE: A NEW LOOK?

No, this is not a new look for the church. On February 5, 6, and 7, our Trustees squeezed a fumigation into the facility's BUSY schedule, tenting every building except Wheatland which will come later.

If you happened to be out of town, here are a few photos of what that looked like. A lot of fabric!

Thank you to all facility users for your patience during this event!

ABOLISH SLAVERY NOW

Pictured are hands of people in Ghana who have been freed from slavery.

Abolish Slavery Now (ASN) exists to combat human trafficking, focusing on education and advocacy relating to California’s slave trade.

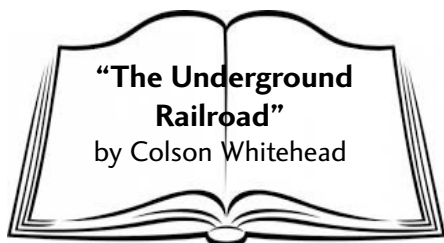

ASN seeks to educate and empower communities to speak on behalf of the enslaved in our midst, and to offer freedom and shelter whenever they come into contact with enslaved persons.

Beyond America’s borders, ASN is committed to freeing enslaved children in Ghana where an estimated 10,000 children are held captive against their will in the fishing industry, and a perhaps larger number in the cocoa farms.

FOR BUREN AND JANE, "IT'S BEEN A WONDERFUL LIFE!"

This is a much abbreviated story of an American life. But it is also a Methodist story and a love story, which really means it is just another witness to God's intersection with his people.

Buren Blackwelder was born on January 19, 1924 in Charlotte, NC. He had a sister 13 years his senior and a brother 8 years older. Tragically, at the age of 13, he and his siblings were orphaned. An angelic member of a local Methodist church (Miss Baines) convinced The Children's Home, a Winston-Salem Methodist orphanage, to take in the teenager, even though he was well past the age of acceptance (mostly infants). No Charles Dickens story here, at this orphanage, he was loved and nurtured, graduating from RJ Reynolds High School, ready to head off to a local college.

That ambition lasted only until a recruiter for the Navy came by, looking for potential naval aviators. Buren jumped at the opportunity. He would eventually complete his college education at George Washington University in Wa., D.C., but at the beginning of his naval career, he was off to Greece in 1949 to fly the Hell Diver and train Greek Air Force pilots on that plane. Buren, known as Blackie to his friends, achieved the rank of Captain before leaving the navy in 1976, only being passed over for admiral because he had never had combat duty, (having received his commission on D-Day!) During his career, he rose to third in command of the U.S.S. Ticonderoga aircraft carrier. He sailed the globe, delivered planes to the South Koreans during the Korean conflict, was on the Ticonderoga in the Gulf of Tonkin during the Viet Nam war. It was a satisfying and distinguished career.

Buren - 23 years old

26 year old Jane

Significantly during his naval career, the dashing naval officer chanced to notice a cute girl at a local club while on leave from his carrier in New York City. She was there with her sister and not at all interested in the fellow who seemed to have had too much to drink. (He was sans his uniform that day, definitely not showing his best side.) He persisted in getting her number and finally she agreed to go out with him. It wasn't long before these two knew they were meant for each other. Jane and Blackie were married in 1971 in Bowling Green, VA. and Jane says she never again saw him tipsy.

The last 5 years of Blackie's military service was on the Island of Crete, providing support to the Greek Air Force. Retiring from the Navy in '76, he went to work for Northrup on Crete for 6 more months before an opportunity arose to take over a position in Iran, which was ruled at the time by the Persian monarch Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, Shah of Iran, an ally of the U.S. Blackie's work involved supplying target drones to the Iranian Navy and the couple's domicile was in Bandar Abbas on the Persian Gulf.

The Iranian Navy built them a home and Northrup provided them money to furnish it, as well as a houseboy to live with and work for them.

The Blackwelders' houseboy, "Mohuram" (sic) became their very good friend and helper.

The drones - Bandar Abbas

Their street in Bandar Abbas

During these years, Jane said her home was a hub for all Northrup business and Iranian Navy entertaining, and she wore evening gowns 5 days a week for all the receptions they hosted! The Shah himself even came to Bandar Abbas once and Blackie was introduced to him.

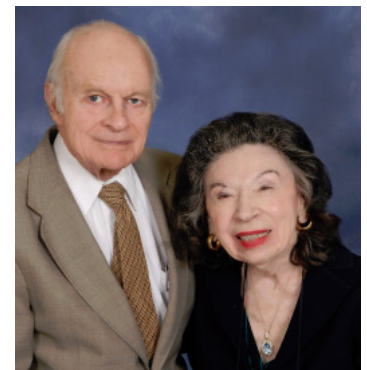

If you are a student of history or lived through those days (or want to Google it), you'll recall that the Shah was overthrown by the Iranian Revolution on 11 February 1979. Jane relates how the lead up to that time was tense, with uncertainty as to who to trust and concern for their own safety. Halliburton Corporation had stepped up to evacuate US ex-pats but at first Jane refused to leave her husband. She eventually did go to the United Arab Emirates, then back to the states to wait for Blackie to join her. He finally got out of Iran on a tub boat.

The next assignment with Northrup was in California, and here is where they landed in 1979. They joined the United Methodist Church of Thousand Oaks in September of that year. Blackie worked as project director over the parts of the world stretching from Egypt to Japan until 1993 when he retired to work full-time with Jane in her own successful career as a real estate agent.

Recently, Blackie's declining health has necessitated his move to Sunrise Senior Care home in Westlake Village. Jane lives nearby and visits him twice a day. She threw him a birthday party on his 94th birthday in January, with Pastor John attending.

Ask Jane anytime about her life and love; she will reply:

"It's been a wonderful life!"
